juniors since he was a fourteen year old.<sup>[1]</sup> He rose through the ranks but could not make it into the first team which saw him lacking much needed game time. Jaure was loaned to division one side La Liga Football Club. After his loan spell away from Dembare the player made a spectacular return and broke into the first team and was named captain of the glamour boys. Despite his very young age, Jaure proved to be a very solid defender in the domestic league which also saw him receiving national teams call ups several times. Following impressive performances in the domestic league, the former Dembare defender attracted the attention of various South African clubs but the player eventually signed for Pretoria University without having gone through the traditional route of trials.

Disciplinary Hearing

The player was once summoned to a disciplinary hearing after he was accused of having brought the name of the game into disrepute following his violent confrontation with former Highlanders Football Club striker Njabulo Ncube. Although the initial decision to send Jaure off was seen as harsh, his reaction towards the referee was as unbecoming after it emerged that the player had to be restrained.<sup>[2]</sup> The player was said to have issued an apology for his actions.
